UNMIK chief Lamberto Zanier said on Thursday that he had got the “green light” from New York to begin a reorganisation of the international administration in Kosovo.

After a meeting with Kosovo President Fatmir Sejdiu, Zanier said that conditions had been provided for the start, as he put it, of the 120-day reconfiguration of the UNMIK operation in Kosovo.

He added that it would take four months to finalise the process and that he saw the end of October as the deadline by which the process should be completed.

Asked to comment on the announcements regarding the formation of a Serb parliament in Kosovo, he said that he did not expect that that would change the reality on the terrain.
