Serbia dissatisfied with work of OSCE in Kosovo

KosovoCompromise Staff

Serbian Foreign Minister Vuk Jeremic called for a special session of the OSCE permanent council, arguing Belgrade was not satisfied with the situation in Kosovo and the OSCE's work in the province.

The foreign minister said that Serbia wanted to discuss the situation in Kosovo and set out Serbia's criticisms at the OSCE Permanent Council, as the body responsible for security issues in Europe and other transcontinental areas.

"We are not satisfied with the work of the OSCE on the ground. We will state our grievances and lodge complaints concerning the appointment of a new OSCE chief on Serbian territory, in Kosovo," Jeremic said.
