KLA renews threats against international community

KosovoCompromise Staff

A representative of the Kosovo Liberation Army has issued a threat of war against the international community that is preserving peace in this Serbian province.

“Kosovo institutions should react firmly and they should be in constant cooperation with the international community, to prevent this. But if it happens, we will react... When you gain something by war, a war is required to take that from you,” said Xhavit Jashari, KLA chief representative.

Jashari also noted that the KLA will consider the years after the war only a cease-fire phase and that they will take their arms if Kosovo’s “statehood” is questioned as is being done by the EU’s civilian plan to bring rule of law to Kosovo.
