Eulex deploys without incidents

KosovoCompromise Staff

The Eulex mission has deployed on Tuesday throughout Kosovo without incidents, as expected following an agreement in the UN Security Council.

Some 1,300 staff have started their work at the mission, including in the Serb-populated enclaves and in northern, Serb-populated part of Kosovo. In the police station in Gračanica only two police officers have been deployed, a Hungarian and a Slovenian.

‘We have advisory role to the station commander. We shall not interfere in his job and we expect Kosovo police to be multiethnic and the Serbs to return to their job soon’, the Hungarian police advisor said.

Police commander Nebojsa Popovic called on the Serbs to return to their police jobs.
